

Webethics: learning to manage the Internet daily with your children/teenagers

7-8 November 2016, Berlin

Digital parenting

- 32 % of 11-12 year-olds go on internet several times a day
- 70% of 15-17 year-olds use internet in separate rooms on their own
- 68% of 15-17 year-olds have been using internet for more than 5 years, compared to 14% of parents

What the parents say...

...since I've started using social media, my daughter is more open to dialogue. She doesn't see me as old fossil anymore. Some will say that by doing so, I'm adapting too much to my child's expectations. They might be right. So what?

Anna, two boys (11 and 13 years) and one daughter (16 years)

Some parents say...

I educate my daughter about the benefits of real vs virtual contacts.

How do we proceed when we really don't really have any interest in the Internet?
